Criminal Finances Act 2017

This practice note provides guidance to solicitors on the corporate offence of failure to prevent the criminal facilitation of tax evasion introduced by the Criminal Finances Act 2017, with effect from 30 September 2017.

This brings a risk of criminal liability to solicitors' firms not just for their employees' actions, but for the actions of others with whom they are associated. The guidance will be submitted for approval by the chancellor and may be updated as a result. It explains:

- the new offence

Closing down your practice: regulatory requirements

This practice note outlines the regulatory requirements to consider when closing down your practice. There are numerous actions that need to be taken when closing down a firm and doing so will require forward planning. The process for closing a practice differs depending on whether or not there is a successor practice in place.

For further information about the successor practice rules consult the Law Society's Professional Indemnity Insurance \(PII\) practice note.

Draft guidelines for manslaughter sentencing

The Society has responded to the Sentencing Council's consultation on draft guidelines for sentencing offences of manslaughter.

The guidelines will assist practitioners in advising clients and making submissions, and judges in arriving at the appropriate sentence for offenders convicted of manslaughter.

There are four separate guidelines under consideration for the different types of the offence:

- Unlawful act manslaughter
- Gross negligence manslaughter
- Manslaughter by reason of loss of control
- Manslaughter by reason of diminished responsibility

LSB regulatory performance assessment consultation

The Legal Services Board (LSB) consultation sought feedback on a simplification and revision of its approach to assessing the performance of frontline regulators.

The Law Society has responded to the consultation and suggested areas for improvements, in particular the need for:

- A measure requiring front line regulators to provide evidence justifying the need for proposed regulatory changes, including relevance and priority
- Proportionality, transparency and consistency in the front-line regulators' approach to different types of rule change, enforcement and supervision
- Proportionality, transparency and consistency in decision-making processes
- Proportionality in allocation of cost burden on the regulated community
- Clear and stronger compliance with the Regulators' Code

SRA corporate strategy 2017-2020

The Solicitors Regulation Authority (SRA) consulted on its draft corporate strategy 2017-2020. The strategy sets out what the SRA seeks to achieve over the next three years, with reference to a set of strategic aims.

Under each of its aims, the SRA outlines how its planned items of work will fulfil that aim. For example, the SRA states that delivery of the Solicitors Qualifying Examination will help deliver on its strategic aim of setting and applying consistently high professional standards for the profession.

The Law Society has responded to the SRA to highlight the areas of concern or where further work is needed by the SRA to ensure that it fulfils its strategic aims.
